Notes: Mayor Thurston observed that the map the City was working under had eight sections, and with the names listed, there were two sections from which no residents applied. He wondered if the Commission should engage in a discussion on possibly redrawing the sections or reducing the number to four sections from eight.

City Attorney Hall suggested tabling the item for discussion at a Commission workshop, leaving the Committee status quo for the time being.

Commissioner Campbell questioned the portion of the resolution that determined the term of the Committee members.

City Attorney Hall explained the subject resolution was to appoint new members for the next one-year term, but the map for the sections represented on the Committee needed to be amended, and so a discussion on the various aspects of the Committee could be discussed more in depth at the September Commission Workshop.

Commissioner Campbell clarified the reason he pulled the item was due to the language regarding the one-year term of the Committee members that expired July 2020. He thought a new board needed time to take shape, and a one-year term limit with all board members' terms expiring at the same time, rather than staggering them, was counterproductive.

City Attorney Hall remarked the workshop discussion would include the possibility of increasing and staggering the terms, and any other possible modifications.
